Many Happy Returns... from Maryland's largest pet resource directory! Once again, we would like to extend our thanks to you legions of loving pet people for our continued success.

As dedicated animal lovers, you may be aware of the court rulings and proposed legislation regarding "Pit Bulls." Last August, the Baltimore Sun reported, "the Maryland Court of Appeals ruled that purebred pit bulls are 'inherently dangerous' and that landlords could potentially be strictly liable if a pit bull attacks a person on their property." The court and media overlooked two basic flaws inherent to all three referenced cases—1) the dogs were roaming or loose and 2) there was no questioning as to the lack of training of these Pit Bulls. To confuse the issue further, it is difficult to identify what a Pit Bull looks like. (Please see the Pit Bull poster on page 24 to see if you can correctly identify the actual one.)

As responsible pet owners, we can recognize the tendency of today's society to blame objects (animals) for tragic events instead of the people (pet owners) who are actually liable. Unfortunately, this is due to fear by an uninformed or misinformed public.

To that end, it is all too easy for society to fault the entire breed and therefore condemn thousands of well-trained loving pets. Case in point: PG County has established a ban on Pit Bull ownership.

If legislative action must be taken, let us focus responsibility (place penalty) on negligent pet owners whom instead should be banned from owning pets. We can also establish a "certified" training program to include bite inhibition techniques. (Refer to 'Aggression' article on page 25). Effective training stops aggressive behavior.

Such recommended action is in accordance with our mission to promote pet education and awareness to enrich our pet's lives as well as the pet-owner relationship. We recommend the many experts found in this edition that accomplish this mission everyday. Please mention that you found these sponsors within these pages, who devote their careers to your pet's well being.

To remain up-to-date on the latest local pet information, signup for our bulletin/newsletter at www.mdpetgazette.com. Our site continues our ever-popular online edition with sponsor links, Rewards Card (page 75) as well as limited special offers, expanded articles, pet tips, etc. Have a fun, healthy and safe year with your pets!

Like Turning Back the Clock

Does your dog struggle with pain when you take him for walks? Is it hard for your cat to get up and down the stairs? Just like us, our pets can lose mobility and suffer from age-related pains, as they get older.

Acupuncture can ease your pet's pain, no matter what the cause. Whether it's arthritis, tendonitis, hip dysplasia, or injury, a licensed animal acupuncturist can help your pet feel better. And you'll see the results, sometimes right away, without the side effects that can come with pain medications.

Imagine your dog running and playing in the yard again, fetching his favorite old tennis ball. Picture your cat bounding up the stairs to chase an imaginary bug, or leaping in mid-air to catch a string... even if he hasn't done it in years. Your dog may act like a puppy or, your cat may leap like a kitten, with restored mobility and vitality, but no more pain. In other cases, the acupuncturist may be able to slow down the process of "disease," providing you and your pet with a better quality of life.

Dozens of studies have shown just how well acupuncture works on pain, for all kinds of animals...

from cats and dogs to horses and even ferrets. The treatment itself is virtually pain-free, so you don't have to worry about the hair-thin needles causing your pet any pain. The animals usually relax completely once the needles are in place, allowing for a stress free alternative to some other more invasive treatments.

For more information, or to arrange a consultation, call Randi Sobel, M.Ac., L.Ac Certified Animal Acupuncturist at 410-654-8997, ext 1. See ad below.

What a cat wants when it purrs, so say the experts, is attention... that's all. Cats purr when injured, when content, when giving birth.

So—Do You Think You Can Talk to the Animals?

If you believe you can—or believe you can't—you're right. If you believe you can't, you'll be hard pressed to clear your mind enough to experience the communication. If you believe you can, a whole new world will be open to you.

Animal communication is a telepathic process—sending thoughts and feelings over distance. The capacity for telepathy is encoded in our DNA. It's the way we communicated when we were cave people. We had to have had something more than a few grunts and hand signals to have survived and evolved into who we are today. Once we developed the ability to speak, we unconsciously put telepathy on the back burner. It must have seemed a much lesser form of communication.

Each of us is able to re-open those channels. With the basic technique and lots of practice, you too can talk to the animals.

Animals communicate primarily through feelings, images and thoughts. It is quick and often subtle. They have no need to belabor conversation. They are very practiced at knowing what we think and feel, and they think we waste a lot of time talking in words.

How to Make a Donation to Your Favorite Shelter or Rescue While Selling Your Home.

They cuddle up under the blankets to get closer, giving off body heat that goes on for days. They follow close behind, always curious what their friend is up to next. They get jealous very easily, and can feel replaced by inanimate objects like laptops and TV remotes. They never take anything for granted and always show unconditional love to whoever crosses their path and are the most loyal friends a person could ever ask for. They also get cold and scared, and startle easily. Some may survive on their own, yet this is by sheer luck, as most are not equipped to deal with the tough demands and dangers of urban environments.

This may sound like the description of a small child, and for all intents and purposes there is nothing that would indicate otherwise. While, in some parts of the world, children may face such dire circumstances, this is fortunately not an issue here in the states. A different but equally disheartening problem exists here. The description above applies to furry companions that are capable of all of the same emotions and feelings as children, yet may be a bit softer to the touch. There are record numbers of animals such as cats and dogs that fend for themselves in an uncompromising and unforgiving world without shelter or food. One uncanny, professionally experienced real estate agent is taking matters into his own hands and is doling out justice by selling houses.

How can selling houses help innocent animals without homes? Well, usually it can't. See, most real estate agents sell houses, the client gets most of the money and the agent takes a piece of the sale (a commission). This is how these agents make their living, yet every now and then someone altruist comes along, who is willing to part ways with his hard earned money to help others enjoy a better quality of life.

Keith Litchauer of Re/max Plus helps save lives of companion animals by donating 25% of his commission from every home sale to a local animal shelter of the seller's choice. For more information on participating in this care-giving program, please call Keith direct at 410-591-4360 or at the offices of Re/max Plus 301-874-5050 or visit www.pawsprogram.com

Great Gift Idea for Pet Lovers

Looking for a ‘PAWS-itively’ unique gift to celebrate a wedding or birth of a baby? Why not include your four-pawed kids? People are becoming very creative with gift giving, having art commissioned to commemorate such moments.

Pets are such an important part of the family unit, and people love to see their family depicted in fun and unique ways. Whether it’s the birth of a new addition, a wedding or new home, art including your pets is a forever keepsake.

Presented complements of Sara England Designs. To view Sara’s commissioned art, visit www.saraenglanddesigns.com. To place an order, call 301-685-1239. See ad above.

RAINBOW BRIDGE

Just this side of heaven is a place called Rainbow Bridge. When an animal dies that has been especially close to someone here, that pet goes to the Rainbow Bridge. There are meadows and hills for all our special friends so they can run and play together. There is plenty of food, water and sunshine, and our friends are warm and comfortable. All the animals who had been ill and old are restored to health and vigor; those who are hurt or maimed are made whole and strong again, just as we remember them in our dreams of days and times gone by.

The animals are happy and content, except for one small thing: they miss someone very special, someone who was left behind. They all run and play together, but the day comes when suddenly one stops and looks into the distance. His bright eyes are intent; his eager body begins to quiver. Suddenly he breaks from the group, flying over the green grass, faster and faster.

You have been spotted and when you and your special friend finally meet, you cling together in joyous reunion, never to be parted again. The happy kisses rain upon your face; your hands again caress the beloved head, and you look once more in those trusting eyes, so long from your life, but never absent from your heart. Then you cross the Rainbow Bridge together.

Own a Dog You Are Proud Of— Not Embarrassed By.

After six weeks of training, Beth said, "It's a miracle." She could barely remember how stressful it was living with her dog, Harry. Working from home was difficult because of constant interruptions—her dog pleading to go out for a walk, barking to get her to play, stealing trash from the kitchen, or chewing on the couch. Friends were never invited to her house because she was too embarrassed he would jump on them. It was nerve-racking walking Harry on a leash, fearful he would see another dog and instantly start barking. Now she's amazed when her dog doesn't jump on friends, and she can talk on the phone without constant barking. She takes her well-behaved dog out on her schedule. The trash can is untouched. Her couch is no longer a chew toy. The training was easy and quick. Beth's only regret was allowing the stressful behaviors to go on too long before she called a professional for help. Today, Beth is proud of her dog, and Harry is more relaxed and confident. You too, can own a dog you are proud of, with a balanced, easy training program to solve your problems.

Can You Find the Pit Bull?

See if you can find it. Note there are no mixes or rescue dogs of unknown background whose breed could be debated. All dogs have been picked from breeders' websites and should be good representatives of their breed. For many people, a "pit bull" is a big-headed dog, or a dog with cropped ears. For some, it's a brindle dog, a big stocky dog, or one with an eye patch.

Working to Help Prevent Dog Aggression

Aggression in dogs is a serious behavior problem. Aggressive behavior is one of the leading causes of euthanasia.

Aggression can often be prevented and is most frequently defensive behavior. We often hear the expression “the best defense is a good offense” and most dogs considered aggressive are defending themselves, others or protecting their resources. Ensuring that puppies are socialized properly with adults, children and other dogs during early development will help set the stage for acceptable behavior as the dog matures.

Puppies, from three weeks of age, when they can see and hear, until 14 weeks of age should be introduced to 100 people, places and other animals. This should include children, adults and non-family members. Most states require that a puppy be at least 8 weeks of age before they can be adopted or purchased. In the beginning you should consider inviting people over to hand feed your pup until he/she has had the first in a series of vaccinations. Have “puppy showers” to introduce your puppy to friends until you can enroll in a puppy k class.

At 8 weeks of age you can enroll your puppy in a puppy k class. Be certain that the class has plenty of safe “off leash” time for socialization combined with positive reinforcement training. Avoiding aversive techniques will help guarantee only positive experiences occur.

During this time until 18 weeks of age, your puppy should learn bite inhibition. Be certain to ask the instructor about the techniques used and if/how bite inhibition is taught.

When a dog is hurt or startled, his natural response is to snap, lunge and even bite. Even extremely friendly dogs may feel inclined to protect or defend themselves when picked on by other dogs and people. The reliability of your dog’s bite inhibition determines whether you have a minor problem or a serious problem.

As stated by world-renowned veterinary behaviorist, Dr. Ian Dunbar, “accidents happen.”

If the dog has a well-established “soft mouth” it is unlikely that the teeth will touch or even break the skin. If your dog has not been taught bite inhibition, you may have a serious injury.

These simple steps can help stop aggressive behavior before it even starts. If you suspect that your puppy is exhibiting aggressive/defensive behavior contact a certified animal behavior consultant for assessment and intervention immediately.

Benefits of Pet Boarding

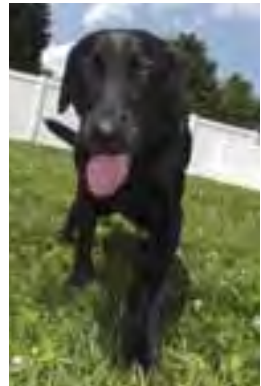

Kenneling your pet shouldn't be seen as nor considered a punishment or bad experience. Kennels provide a fun, professional and, above all else, safe environment for every guest. A kennel strives to make the experience entertaining and relaxing for each guest. Using a kennel also helps avoid territorial issues or behavior that can arise when someone enters your house. Even a docile pet may act differently if uncomfortable in his/her own home.

Guests who are in their own individual rooms are also learning to socialize with the guests next to them and across from them. A pet that has been able to socialize, just like children, are more comfortable and in turn happier in various situations since they know they don't have to be afraid.

Kennels, even with many guests, are staffed with trained professionals that not only know what to look for but also know how to respond to what they find. Consider looking for a facility that has at least one trained manager on site 24 hours a day and where all full-time staff members have received training in animal CPR, have taken certified courses and receive continuing education in regard to ailments or uncommon pet behavior.

For more information, contact Reisterstown Boarding Kennels (RBK), at 410-833-2090 or visit rbkpetresort.com. See ad on back cover.

How to Choose a Boarding Kennel

Choosing a boarding kennel for your dog is as important as choosing a hotel when you go on vacation. Just like you, your dog can get stressed. Making sure that your dog has an enjoyable stay while you are on vacation will help keep him/her healthy and in good spirits.

When looking for a boarding kennel, here are a few things to consider:

- How are the kennels maintained? Are they clean?
- What do the pens look like? Is it a cage or a run? Is there outside access?
- Is the staff understanding of your dog's needs? Are they knowledgeable?
- Is the kennel licensed?
- What is the daily routine with feeding, etc?

- What vaccinations do they require?
- How will the kennel handle a medical emergency?
- What type of temperature control is available? Are the pens heated and/or air-conditioned?

Finding a good kennel can be as simple as asking a friend, co-worker, family member, or dog trainer for recommendations. You can also check local resources such as this Maryland Pet Gazette. Once you have a few names, call the individual kennels and ask for references. Most importantly, don't wait to the last minute to make your dog's accommodations. During peak vacation times, kennels fill quickly.

Is It Time for a New Dog?

There are many reasons that people want a new dog. Probably the most common reasons are family decisions based on children, where a new pet will help bring enjoyment to the family.

The decision to get a first dog is usually dependent upon the family's ability to care for the new pet. It is extremely important to be able to adequately care for the dog 24/7.

If the primary care giver works, and no one is home to provide for the dog's needs, then it is not the right time. In addition, if the children are young, care must be given to selecting the correct breed for the family. Breeders, veterinarians and kennels can be consulted for breeds suited best for your family.

It is often advisable for dog owners who have an aging dog to get a companion pet. That usually provides a noticeable spark in the aging dog and can add years to his or her life. Also it lessens the grief that a family has when the older dog passes away. The fact that other pets in the household also grieve as well is commonly overlooked.

What Is Raw Feeding?

When raw feeding, what you see is what you get. There are no hidden ingredients, no fillers. All the mystery is taken out of your dog's meals. A raw diet is composed of the same food you eat, but as it suggests, nothing is cooked.

Why feed raw?

Dogs in the wild never had cooked pellets that contained cooked vegetables and grains (or cooked meat), thus their systems are not made for digesting these ingredients. A raw diet is a direct evolution of what dogs ate before they became our pets.

Some pet owners who have made the switch have noticed drastic changes in their pets, including:

- Shinier, healthier skin;
- Fresher breath/cleaner teeth;
- Improved digestion;
- Improvement with allergy symptoms;

- Decreased shedding;
- Increased stamina;
- Firmer, smaller stools;
- A general increase in overall health.

IMPORTANT NOTE: Cooked bones run the risk of splintering—NEVER feed cooked bones!

A dog on a raw diet will need a variety of different meats in order to reap the benefits that each protein provides; for example one type of meat may be higher in iron, while another may be higher in vitamin A. So rotate your raw diet so your pet will receive all the above benefits.

For more information on raw diets, contact Dogs Gone Wild at www.dgwrwfood.com or call 410-960-8667 for locations. See ad above.

Accidents Happen!

Many of the pet safety restraints on the market do not provide acceptable levels of protection in a crash situation. We conduct rigorous crash testing.

helpful tips for better pet care.

PET SITTING

ATTENTION READERS: Once again, we have organized all pet sitters by county. See background color code, which corresponds to the county where you live. (Counties are also listed alphabetically.) All pet sitters serve only those areas and communities listed below their name or in their display ad. They do not provide service to other areas! If you cannot find a pet sitter who covers your area and it is within our circulation area, call 410-985-6200, so we can locate a local pet sitter for you.

Humanely Remove Wildlife from Your Home

Most people do not that know squirrels, raccoons, birds and bats living in their attic could cause numerous diseases and hazards.

Squirrels and raccoons chew the insulation and wiring to make nest; this can cause a fire hazard in your home, so proper removal is very important.

Raccoons carry a deadly roundworm in the feces that can cause blindness and death, so if they are living in your attic, they need to be removed now!

Birds carry too many diseases to list here. Don't let animals jeopardize your health or the health of your family. Fleas, lice, ticks and other parasites live in the nest of all wildlife, so keep them outside where they belong.

Although bats are very beneficial to our local ecosystem, they are the number one rabies source in Maryland, and do not belong in your home! You could be scratched or bitten by a bat and never even know it, until you see a bat in your house,

Mice, rats and snakes also commonly invade homes as they seek warm places to nest. Do not attempt to remove these animals yourself as you could be injured and infected in the process.

If you hear scratching or rustling in your home, it could be unwanted wildlife trying to enter and make a nest in your attic, act fast to eliminate any problem animal before they have their babies or cause damage. Take immediate action to contact a reliable, fast responding service to humanely trap, remove the wildlife and have the entry point sealed off permanently, which can save you thousands of dollars and prevent destruction of your home.

As a reader of Maryland Pet Gazette, you love animals so demand a service that humanely traps the wildlife and releases it back into the wild far from your home, You should also look for a local service where you can reach someone 24/7, who offers free estimates and provides a 10 year warranty on all work performed.

Presented complements of Shumaker's Animal Control. Call 443-854-8072 anytime 24/7 for a free estimate.

Capturing the Personality

What should you look for when commissioning a portrait of your pet? The artist needs to capture your pet's personality, know what to look for, and loves animals, has the ability to see what makes them unique and special; that makes them stand out from all the others; something that only you, their master/mistress loves and can spot in a second.

Look for an artist who will talk to you, wants to understand your relationship with your pet, has the patience and spends time taking lots of photos and does sketches your pet. If you live too far away or the pet has died, the artist should want information and ask for lots of photos; preferably, taken in natural light. It helps capture the coloring as close to true as photography will allow. For a good pet portrait artist, it is important to learn what is or was special about your pet, so share a few stories and special moments that made you laugh, cry, or both. Sharing those photos that are important helps the artist capture the personality of your pet. In the end, the best compliment is "Oh my! That's my baby."

To learn about ordering a forever memento of your pet, call 410-790-7889, or visit www.artsdtryon.com. See ad above.

Rescue Organizations

Attention Reader: The following list has been extensively updated for 2013. Consider these groups as an excellent means of adopting a new pet and the first place if you must surrender your pet. (We strongly recommend you keep your pet for life!) They are staffed by volunteers who sacrifice many hours of their time to save the lives of many animals in the local community. Contacts are accurate as of the printing of this directory, but change frequently. If you do not see a particular breed listed below, there is no current local group and we advise you to contact your local shelter (see page 4) or all breed rescue (below).

Vacationing with a Pet

When planning another week long vacation or short weekend getaway, the question is always the same: What to do with the family pet? Leave him with a friend, find a kennel or take him with us? All the options are weighed, as he lays there wagging his tail and looking at you with those sad eyes that say, “Take me with you, I’ll be good!” His adorable face wins and the search for a pet-friendly getaway begins.

First, research areas that you want to visit that have pet friendly accommodations. There are many resources for this, such as, the internet, local chamber of commerce, directories or word of mouth.

Second, find a drive that gets you out of the rat race but not too long a drive for your furry friend.

Third, look for amenities that enhance a pet’s stay, such as, gated decks for safety, space for exercising activities like, walking or swimming.

There are many benefits to bringing a pet along: fun bonding time, proper care for your pet by family, less stress or depression for everyone, saving money and no guilt about leaving your best friend behind. Discovering new adventures and places together will create lasting memories.

24/7 Care—What Does That Mean?

In many cases a pet's medical needs can be met through an appointment or outpatient care with a primary care veterinarian, but there are times that a pet may need in hospital care or a more intensive procedure. These situations may include post-surgical recovery, pancreatitis, serious infections, emergency surgery, diabetic crisis, heart failure and respiratory crisis. A comprehensive 24/7 hospital is always open, with a veterinarian and support staff on site and is willing to help you and your pet. These hospitals often have state of the art technology to provide quick and accurate diagnosis and treatment. A true specialty hospital has veterinarians that have achieved board certification in their field. Specialists are available in veterinary medicine to provide advanced diagnostics and procedures. Internal Medicine specialists perform ultrasound, endoscopy, colonoscopy, minimally invasive procedures and intensive care. Surgical specialists perform advanced soft tissue and orthopedic surgeries as well as pain management.

Emergency doctors are available during the hours primary care veterinarians are not open to help pets with emergencies or urgent care needs. Some hospitals have the added benefit of the emergency services and specialists working cohesively to provide advanced care all day, every day.

Article provided by Crossroads Animal Referral and Emergency. To obtain specialty or emergency services , call 301-662-CARE (2273). See ad page 59.

What is Feline Hyperthyroidism?

Recent advances in veterinary medicine have allowed our pets to enjoy long healthy lives. However, as our pets live longer they have increased risk for diseases that commonly effect geriatric patients, such as diabetes, kidney disease and hyperthyroidism. Of these, feline hyperthyroidism is the most easily addressed, as there are options for both medical and dietary management and a complete cure.

Feline hyperthyroidism is caused by a small tumor, often benign, on the thyroid gland. This tumor resists regulation of thyroid hormone levels by the brain, which results in increased metabolism, blood flow, and frequently secondary conditions such as increased blood pressure and heart rate, or heart murmurs. Often, affected cats eat large amounts while continuing to lose weight.

Fortunately, this condition has a cure in the form of I-131. A small amount of radioactive iodine is used to completely remove the tumor, effectively resolving the condition. Unlike formulated drugs, there are no side effects and there is no need for lifelong management once the tumor has been destroyed.

Though there are many geriatric conditions that require extensive management and resources, hyperthyroidism need not be considered the fatal disease it once was.

Presented by Radiocat. For more information, please call 410-788-5200 or visit www.radiocat.com. See our above.

Companion Care Mobile Vet

Limited to: Baltimore City,
Baltimore County & Harford County

410-285-5442

Benefits Offered by a Mobile Veterinarian

Mobile veterinarians offer many services that are similar if not better than a stationary clinic. Certain mobile veterinarians drive trucks that are fully equipped with things like a surgery suite, digital radiographs, blood machines and dental units.

Blood machines allow veterinarians to get results quickly so diseases like diabetes can be treated immediately. Veterinarians can also pursue other diagnostics like radiographs if the bloodwork is normal.

On board surgical suites allow procedures like spay/neuter, mass removals and laceration repairs to be done by a mobile veterinarian as well. This is helpful in emergencies like a foreign body or pyometra (infected uterus) that need immediate treatment.

In-home euthanasia services eliminate the stress of your pet going to the vet in the final moments of their life and allow the family to grieve in private. Some mobile veterinarians offer additional services like cremation.

Finally, mobile veterinarians help animals by making their vet visit easy for them and their owner. Many cats and dogs labeled “fractious” at a stationary clinic may actually do much better in their home environment. Transportation is another major issue faced by pet owners. By going to a pet’s home, pets can get the medical care they really need.

Submitted by Harborside Mobile Veterinary Clinic. For more information, call 443-867-2601, visit harborsidemobilevet.com or email contact@harborsidemobilevet.com. See ad top of page.

Welfare Organizations for Animals

Save a life. Consider adopting a shelter animal or rescue animal. We need your help—a record number of good pets are now given up during these tough economic times. In turn, our shelters are filling up and their resources are stretched. As a result, some of these facilities are offering significant discounts on adoption fees. You can also donate to your favorite animal welfare organization or serve as a volunteer.
